

The Honorable Shelley C. Chapman,

On June 12, 2012 I was diagnosed with invasive ductal carcinoma Stage II breast cancer. After recovering from the shock of being diagnosed, I was so very thankful I had insurance to cover my care.

My life is literally on the line, if I don't have insurance to cover treatment this will put such a hardship on me. This has really stressed me out worrying about the breast cancer, ins, all the side effects from treatment. My first thought was, Please God, let me live to see my grandsons grow up. So many people who worked hard all their lives, making money for the company are being treated so unjustly. We have to take back the America that took care of workers, treated people fairly. Big business has lost the heart and soul of what made America great.

My husband has worked in the mining industry for 30 years, made a good living, he loves his job as a surface miner. He has stepped up to the plate many, many times to help people in need, as have all the miners, in our community.
